Disrespectful Child Behavior: Where to Draw the Line

As a parent, it is often helpful to know when your child has crossed the line in the area of disrespect. When a child is being rude or complaining that something isn't fair, ask yourself: "Is my child expressing general frustration about the injustices or challenges of life, or is he being deliberately hurtful, condescending, or abusive?" At what point do you ignore, and at what point do you discipline?

I look at it this way: when your child rolls his eyes and stomps up the stairs, it's fairly harmless. It's very different from him saying, "You're a jerk. You can't make me. I don't care what the rules are, I'm not doing it!"

There is a distinction between eye-rolling and your child shouting, "You're stupid" or something even worse. This is where we as parents need to understand this difference at a core level.

Disrespectful Child Behavior Parents Should NOT Ignore

Make no mistake, when true disrespect is directed toward a specific parent or sibling and it's demeaning and rude, it should be dealt with immediately. If your child doesn't see the line between disrespect, you need to talk with them. Sit down with your child when things are going well and say:

"Listen, if you want to stomp up the stairs because you're frustrated and you think things aren't fair, that's okay with me. But if you start calling people names and being rude to family members, you're going to be held accountable for that behavior. So, don't go too far."

If you've noticed that your child has already crossed the line and is behaving in an increasingly disrespectful manner, you can say:

"Look, there's a line that I think you're crossing when you talk to us. If you want to roll your eyes and say 'Whatever,' that's fine with me. I don't want to fight with you about that. But name-calling, blaming, and yelling are not acceptable. You are responsible not to do those things."

Final Thought:

Respect begins at home. If you want your children to be respectful, you have to be respectful, too. If you call your kids names, if you yell at others, if you make derogatory remarks to your spouse, don't be surprised if your child behaves the same way.

It is suggested that we as parents prepare before the disrespect begins. Know where your line of disrespect is, and stick to it. Set expectations for your child at school and discuss what you want to see in regard to respect.

Meet your CSE PTO officers! Natalie Brown-President, Kathy Watkins, Sec. They can be reached at cse_pto.cse@catoosa.k12.ga.us for any PTO questions or suggestions you may have.

PTO needs your help! We are raising funds to help CSE purchase much-needed equipment, technology programs, etc. If you haven't already joined PTO, please complete the membership form that was sent home with students (if you need another form, please let us know.) Please send dues to your child's teacher.

PTO Cookie Dough Fundraiser began on September 5th and ended on September 19th . We will make approximately $4000.00 from this sale, and money was allotted for a new sound system for the gym. Orders were turned in on September 25th to the company. Cookie Dough should be back sometime in October. When it arrives, a date and time will be scheduled for pickup, depending on the size of the order, it may come home via parent pickup at the end of the school day. There will be no cookie dough sent home with students who ride a bus, parents must pick up.

Mrs. Cole's Library News

Our AR program is off to a great start! AR stands for Accelerated Reader. We have lots of prizes for students who earn points by reading AR books. They can earn slap bracelets, lunch with the principals, posters in the hallway, and even an end-of-the-year field trip! Please encourage your students to read for at least 20 minutes every night and then take an AR quiz the next day to earn points.

This year, we have also added something new: The Millionaire's Club! Your student can earn all sorts of bling and prizes for reading a million words this year. So far, 5th grader Elijah Shull is in the lead with 216,419 words! I wonder how many CSE students will join the club. Keep up the great work, everyone! Happy reading!

CSE Student/Parent Handbook Reminders

If you have not reviewed the CSE Student/Parent Handbook, yet, here are some highlights:

- Waivers for free meals for all students have expired which means students and their families will once again be charged for school meals for the 2023-2024 school year. Families may apply for free or reduced-price meals. Apply at lunchapplication.com for the upcoming school year.
- For safety reasons, we will not allow any transportation changes over the phone or by Remind. We will only accept transportation changes that are written, dated, and signed by the legal parent/guardian. You may send this in with your child in the morning or fax a change to the office at (706) 861-6642. We must receive all changes by 2:00 p.m. each afternoon. No changes in your child's permanent transportation will be made without a written note. Please remember this is for the safety of your child.
